NO CHILD LEFT BEHIND ACT

Special Education- Student Files

Overview:

The No Child Left Behind Act has created a tremendous opportunity for sales of filing systems. All public schools are required to provide appropriate educational opportunities to students with special educational requirements. The U.S. Government requires that specific forms be used to record the progress of each student within the special educational system. The government does not specify what type of filing system should be used. Most schools will complete the required paper work and create a file for each student. These schools face the usual filing issues including limited space requirements, mis-file problems and security issues. We recommend that you approach this application while it is hot.

The Situation:

An architect on a project for a larger city school called our distributor into a situation. The Department of Special Education needed filing space for their students records. The distributor worked with the Director of Special Education to help them with their filing needs.

The Solution:

Mobile shelving, new factory labeled folders, a file move, conversion services, a tracking system and NetLabels were provided to upgrade the filing system. The original order included 14,000 new folders, the filing equipment and NetLabels. The distributor currently has several outstanding proposals at other school systems in their territory.
